

Pablo Ramirez is the Executive Director & Attorney of the Legal Aid Society of San Bernardino, where he leads transformative efforts to expand access to justice for underserved communities in the Inland Empire. A proud Latino leader, Pablo is deeply committed to breaking down systemic barriers by building legal services into the environments where people already seek help. He has expanded Medical-Legal Partnerships (MLPs) with health centers, eviction defense programs, and veterans' services—bringing legal assistance directly into clinics and community spaces to address the social determinants of health.

Under his leadership, Legal Aid has implemented technology-driven innovations like client-facing kiosks and ethical AI-powered training tools, while also fostering partnerships with institutions such as Stanford Legal Design and the local court system. Through this work, Pablo ensures that legal advocacy is culturally responsive, community-based, and integral to the broader movement for health equity in Latino communities across San Bernardino and Riverside counties
